ABOUT ME

I am currently studying to become a Fullstack Developer in .NET. In my previous roles, I excelled in service, sales, and marketing, including social media management, event planning, and project management. My passion for programming led me to pursue a career as a fullstack developer in IT.

I am a driven, responsible, and goal-oriented individual with a positive and resilient attitude. I thrive in managing multiple tasks, leading projects from start to finish, and contributing effectively within a team. My commitment to customer satisfaction and team success has been a consistent theme throughout my career.

Outside of work, my primary interest is football, a sport I've played since childhood. I am a dedicated team player, always ready to contribute. Additionally, I have diverse interests, including various sports as hockey and golf, fashion, computers, and music. When not on the field or coding, I enjoy spending time with family and friends.
